

Your career starts here.

FDM is an award-winning graduate employer. We recruit, train and deploy talented individuals like you who want to excel in an exciting tech or business career. Your adventure begins with industry recognised training at one of our academies. Following training, you'll gain two years of commercial experience. It doesn't stop there, many of our consultants go on to work permanently with the client, work internally at FDM or choose a different pathway using the connections and experience they've gained.

As an FDM consultant, you could be working with our clients across a number of functions and departments in order to help them achieve their business objectives. We're passionate about kick-starting graduate careers and support you every step of the way to ensure you are able to start making a difference from day one!
